TO DENISON WE RAISE OUR SONG:
FAIR COLLEGE ON THE HILL,
THE NAME THAT SETS OUR SOULS ON FIRE
AND MAKES OUR SENSES THRILL.
TO DENISON, MY DENISON,
IN PRAISE OUR VOICES SWELL,
THE SCENES OF HAPPY COLLEGE DAYS,
THE HOME WE LOVE SO WELL.

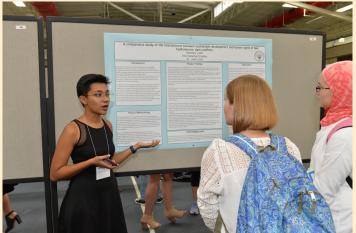

Academics

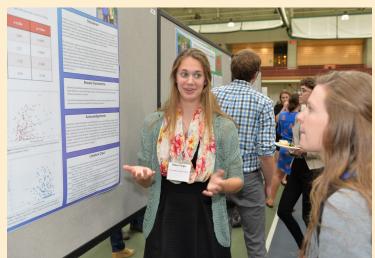

Academics at Denison is more than just lectures and exams in classrooms. Academic success is Denison's core goal and students achieve this through small class sizes and the very best faculty. Both inside and outside the classroom, students learn and grow, creating incredible bonds and unforgettable memories.

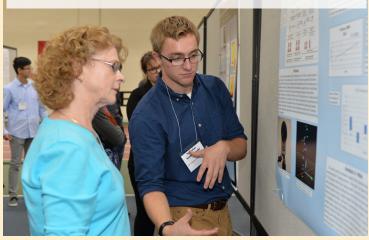

PRESENTATIONS

The Summer Scholars program offers Denison students the opportunity to explore, in depth, a topic of particular interest, usually within the department of their major. These six to ten weeks of intense research then culminate in a poster presentation at the beginning of the next academic year.

FINE ARTS SUMMER PRESENTATIONS

Similar to the Summer Scholars Presentation, students submit proposals to do research and work on particular areas of interest within the arts. From Studio Art to Cinema, students spend the summer working, researching and creating.

At the Red Frame Lab students examine problems and develop solutions. They work with professional staff and entrepreneurs-in-residence on assignments, issues, and questions. They develop skills for life, for every graduate and professional program, and for every nonprofit or place of business.

DATA ANALYTICS

In this department, students learn how to work with quantitative and qualitative data, identify puzzles, probe questions, make inferences, and communicate data-driven answers to real world problems. Not only can students personalize their DA major by intersecting it with another academic field, but Denison's ideal location provides students with easy access to world-class co-operations and organizations in which to apply their knowledge. These range from fields as diverse as marketing and communication to public health and community development. The major is firmly rooted in the liberal arts principle and allows students to discover new knowledge in socioeconomic and ethical frameworks.

Student Life

Student orgs. and Res. Life come together into what we call student life. Denisonians are as committed to their extracurricular clubs and activities as they are to their academics. Here on the hill, we have a club for everyone! Residential Life on campus is no less involved. Apart from a strong sense of community both within each hall, quad and throughout campus, Denisonians also organize a number of activities for students to celebrate their home on the hill.

DU LEAD

D.U. Lead is about leading with integrity and "Making Your Mark" within the Denison Community to create and sustain positive change.

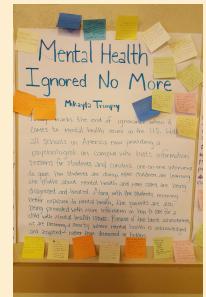

Dynamic, challenging, and exciting, the week is intended to produce a breakthrough in the leadership capacity of participants — benefiting them individually, as well as their respective communities and the organizations they will go on to lead and serve in the future.

How it all started

Denison is a journey that every student embarks on by settling down in their first-year dorms, getting used to the new faces, and the incredible community that will stay with them long after they have graduated.

Summarize your Denison experience.

"I've appreciated all aspects of my Denison experience. In particular, I have enjoyed the opportunity to attend both an academically rigorous, and athletically competitive institution of higher education because my identity as a student-athlete has allowed me to grow, and prosper, within the Denison community. Denison has taught me important lessons of self-sufficiency, leadership, and perseverance during my time that I will continue to carry for the rest of my life."

"My time at Denison really brought me out of my shell. Both in class and out, I learned the value of discussion and the merit of bringing my own ideas to the table. I cannot thank my professors and friends enough for how much I have grown and changed over the last four years."

—Ali Rose_Denver, CO

"Denison made me feel inspired every day. My classmates and professors are such great people and do such important work, it's hard not to feel energized while on campus, and hard not to miss it when you're away."

—Gabe Schenker_Cincinnati, OH

"My Denison experience has taught me to become a responsible independent individual. I have appreciated all my professors, mentors, and friends who helped me grow into the person I am."

"As we all go out to change the world, each in our own way, let us remember the formative years we spent together on the Hill, appreciating Denison as the place that forged who we would become."

Do you have a favorite memory?

"Traveling to India, Mungli for a 10-week volunteering experience at Christian Hospital Mungeli was the most memorable experience I gained via opportunities provided by Denison C&E. The witnessing of extreme poverty and the lack of resources to healthcare motivated me to continue my pursuit of medicine and to serve the underserved populations."

Your greatest achievement while at Denison?

"My greatest achievement would be the ability to recognize individuality in others and myself."

—Parker Brarens_Cincinnati, OH

"My greatest achievement would have to be personal growth. I might not have participated more actively on campus, but I grew as an individual with the experiences that I have gone through while being a student at Denison."

Baccalaureate Celebration

Baccalaureate is a multi-religious gathering for graduates and their guests. It celebrates the pluralistic community that comprises our college today, including its Protestant Christian roots.

Senior Soirée

Held on the eve of Commencement, this event is a time for seniors to come together with parents and other assembled family members under the tent on Reese~Shackelford Common to celebrate their four years together and their transition into the Society of the Alumni. Live music, dancing, food, and fun are featured in an informal and festive atmosphere as seniors gather to enjoy their last night as undergrads!

The Graduation Ceremony

May 19, 2018: more than 500 seniors arrive in the Mitchell gymnasium. The three-hour ceremony involves speeches, chatting with friends, all kinds of emotions, and each senior getting their moment to shine--quite a microcosm of their four years at Denison. With the 177th Commencement and its traditional hat-tossing, these seniors become alumni, knowing that the friends found and accomplishments created here will stand for a lifetime. We wish them well in all their endeavors.

Candids

Academics, athletics, events, student organizations make up the skeleton and structure of the Denison experience, but what makes the 4-year journey so memorable is the people of Denison: the heart and soul of the university.

Putting together a yearbook is a monumental task, and no single person or even a single staff can do it alone. We rely on a lot of outside help, including but not limited to:

University Communications, who provide us with funding, photos, and guidance as well as a larger context within the University;

Craig Hicks and Denison Athletics, who provide all the sports information we could ever use;

Academic department secretaries, who work with us to arrange faculty photos and provide other helpful info; Student photographers, especially Linh Nguyen '18, for providing so many great photos from events we sometimes didn't even know were happening; and

The student body, for taking our surveys, providing photos and input, and contributing their stories to the yearbook.

The staff thanks our advisor, Jamie Hale, for enormous amounts of guidance and mentorship; for being an advocate for our hard work and helping us where it was needed; for being our liaison with University Communications and providing photo access; and for being our fierce and constant friend.

Having been the editor-in-chief the past four years, I have seen this book grow a great deal, and it has seen me grow a great deal, as well. I am excited to finally leave the book in the hands of a capable, committed staff (and the Dog God), who I know will do amazing things with this book. One of the members of that staff told me (perhaps jokingly) to "be brief, okay, don't write a book," but that's easy—I have no words to describe how grateful I am for having been the editor for four years, for leading a staff during much of this time, for forming a network across campus, and for becoming a better photographer, writer, designer, editor, and leader. Thanks most importantly to Jamie, our advisor, under whose mentorship and friendship I've learned more than I expected and grown leaps and bounds as a leader and a person—under his and this staff's lead, I am confident in the future of the Adytum.
